My apologies that I haven't been in school this week to see all the children. We're a Covid household at the moment, but hopefully I should be back in school by Tuesday next week. Thank you to everyone who has extended their best wishes for a speedy recovery, I do appreciate it.

I know that many parents open and read this newsletter on their phones, and I also know that our school website isn't very mobile friendly. We are taking steps to get our website upgraded to a mobile friendly version, so that it should be easier for you all to be able to read your child's class bulletins. The bulletins are always full of useful information, and it is really important that you can read them. Please see the bottom of this section of the newsletter for a direct link to your child's bulletin. I have also attached the links to the parentmail I have sent for this newsletter.

Thank you very much for your cooperation with the new morning bell system that we have tried this week. Please remember that it will ring just before 8:50am to allow the children time to line up before heading into their classrooms at 8:50am.

Our parents' evenings begin on Monday next week. Your child will bring home the Zoom Meeting ID and Password in their bookbags today. Please let us know on Monday morning if you have not been able to find your code. Have a lovely weekend!

If you want your children to be intelligent, read them fairy tales.
If you want them to be more intelligent,
read them more fairy tales.
